

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a process for manufacturing a moulded part, in which the moulded part is obtained by moulding at least one composite sandwich, the said sandwich incorporating an expansion agent that reacts during moulding. The invention also relates to the moulded part obtained and to the sandwich used.